President's Patch

By Rhonda Bowman, President

Well, it seems like spring is finally here! And we have lots of planning to do for the upcoming Statewide Master Gardeners' Conference on April 22nd. There has been lots of thinking and pre-planning done already, but so much more to do to prepare for the big event. If you'd like to volunteer, please contact Lois Rockcastle at tundracare@alaska.net or attend our upcoming meeting on April 3rd to request to help.

The Alaska State Fair is being held from August 24th through September 4th this year, and we always look forward to the great turnout of vegetables and flower growers to show off their expertise in the exhibits. Please make sure that you check the fair's website to ensure you submit your entries on time!

Don't forget that our upcoming annual plant sale will be held on June 3rd at the downtown Palmer Pavilion. It is a great opportunity to get your favorite starts and flowers.

I know many of you are so busy with your starts and small plants. I look forward to seeing your successes on Facebook using our group page of Mat-Su Master Gardeners.

Please make sure you attend our next meeting at the MTA conference room on April 3 at 7pm.

PEASANT'S PERSPECTIVE: BY CURT MUELLER, MASTER GARDENER

Photos by the author

All these days of glorious sunshine might make one think that spring is nigh, although on the morning of the day this is written the thermometer showed -5F. We gardeners are patient people. Spring will get here in its own good time.

The peasant and his good helpmate are well immersed in growing things from seed, like most gardeners at this time of year. Some tried and true techniques are worth mentioning here. A good fine seeding medium will accommodate just about all the seeds we like to start. Redi-Earth has now become Sungro Propagation Mix, but it's still the same stuff. Plastic food wrap such as Saran Wrap is a big help. Bottom heat helps speed germination on many kinds of seeds.

The peasant uses food wrap to cover containers on everything he seeds, to keep the medium moist during germination. Allowing the medium to dry out once the germination process has begun will likely prevent the seed from germination at all. When seeds begin to sprout, the wrap can be turned over daily to get rid of the beads of moisture that form on the underside or left off for a time to allow condensation to evaporate. Bottom heat is good, but too warm a temperature may inhibit germination. Thermometers to monitor soil temperature are a big help.

A favorite spring flower that the peasant likes to share is the pasque flower. It blooms early to provide its lovely color and when the blooms have faded its fluffy seed heads continue to beautify the plant all during summer. If you grow the pasque flower, you'll discover that it likes some space and more aggressive plants encroaching on it will cause it to lose vigor and eventually to die out. Keeping an open area around the plant will allow it to thrive and make it stand out.

Pasque flower seedlings; three in bottom row still coming up.

Propagating this plant from seed has been a specialty of the peasant for years. Seed is collected in fall when it has ripened and is ready to fall off. It is stored in freezer bags with the tails attached. When our short days have begun to lengthen, the seed is planted into small plastic boxes, seeds spaced about a 1/2 inch apart. The tails are used in pushing the seed into the soil, with the top of the seed right at or just below the soil surface. The containers are covered with food wrap, placed in the potato bin [temperature about 40F], and forgotten for a month.

After the stratification process the boxes are placed on medium bottom heat for germination in light. The seeds will germinate over two to three weeks. When they have formed leaves and are actively growing, they are separated and transplanted to three-inch pots.

At this point, gardeners will need to begin exercising their patience. Growing in pots will mean caring for the plants for a couple of years before the plants will form flower buds. The peasant has found that a plant with a flower bud will sell readily or make a nice gift for a fellow gardener.

Pasque flowers are a favorite of honey bees.

Pasque flowers are great in a rock garden. They are extremely hardy and like well-drained soil. The outside edge of a bed is a favored place and they fit well there as they are not tall plants. A little elevation enhances their beauty. A winter mulch will be appreciated. Your patience will be well rewarded when the buds begin to show and soon after they begin the bloom period.

Seedheads on pasque flowers in varying stages of formation. Seedheads remain on plant until fall.

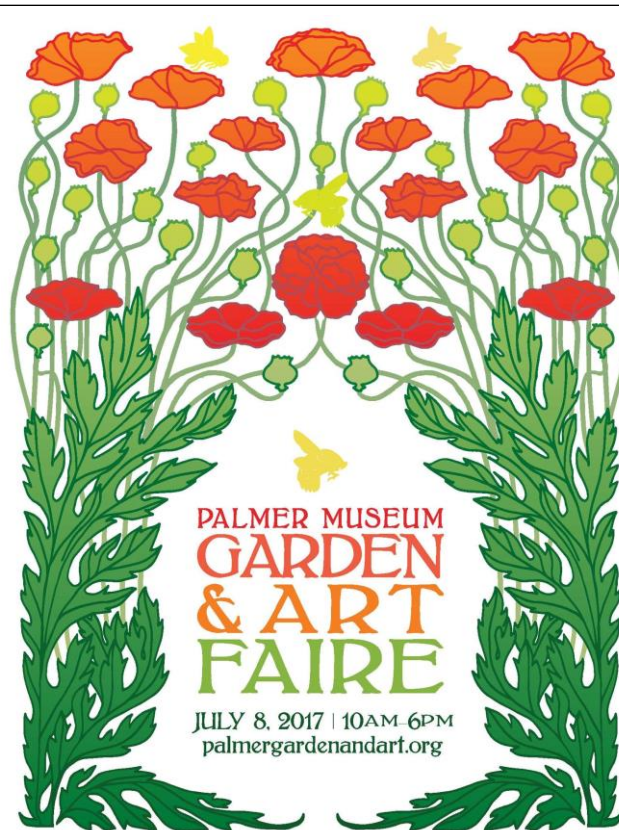

Thank you, patient folks.

CALL TO ALL MEMBERS

Baked Goods Needed

We're asking everyone to please bring some baked goodies (about 2 dozen) to the State Master Gardeners Conference on April 22nd. It would be great if you could use something in your freezers or shelves prepared from last year's harvest, i.e. muffins, some type of cookies or a finger food.

Even if you're not planning on attending, we welcome you to drop your goodies off at the Palmer Train Depot on the morning of the conference, April 22nd - between the hours of 7:00 a.m. and 9:00 a.m. Your support is needed and appreciated!

Mat-Su Master Gardeners Meeting Minutes

The March 6 meeting of the Mat-Su Master Gardeners was called to order by Vice President Curt Mueller at 6:50 PM.

Curt brought up the issue of using Robert's Rules of Order and that a brief summary of the rules was published in the March newsletter.

Cathy Crew gave the Treasurer's report. There were no letters of intent provided by either Heart Reach or Grow Palmer for the grant money they requested. These were both tabled until the organizations submit letters of intent.

The next meeting of the Conference Committee is March 27 at 7:00 PM. The April MMGA meeting will be dedicated to stuffing folders and putting together "goodie" bags for conference participants.

A discussion regarding our beds was held about Matanuska Experiment Farm, Palmer Public Library planter, and the Pioneer Home flowers beds. Someone noted that Rhonda Bowman had already ordered the flowers but it was not known what she ordered. We need Rhonda to bring a list of what was ordered. Someone needs to contact the Pioneer Home and the Matanuska Experiment Farm to find out what the planting dates are. There needs to be a weeding and watering schedule set up for each project so we have participation from all available members. This is a good project for new Master Gardeners who need volunteer hours.

We discussed the plant sale and currently have 1000 yellow plant tags, and 3000 white tags on hand. A motion was submitted by Deb Blaylock to change the membership requirements for the plant sale.

Motion to amend plant sale participation requirements:

Eligibility for participation in the annual Mat-Su Master Gardeners Association (MMGA) plant sale: new and renewing members must have participated in a minimum of three MMGA meetings in the 12 months prior to the plant sale (June through May) OR have volunteered a minimum of 4 hours (documented) at any of the MMGA approved volunteer projects. Documentation would be provided by the volunteer and should include: project name/title, organization point of contact, date, and hours of work performed.

There was much discussion and concern on this issue. Meeting sign-in rosters would provide proof of meeting attendance. Proof of volunteer hours at other events would be provided by the member. There was discussion regarding what makes a member in good standing with the club? Also mentioned was grandfather rights for long standing members.

The motion was tabled and we will discuss more at our April meeting.

A Nominating Committee for board member elections was formed of Joan Redlin, Arlene Bowman, Wayne Bowman, and Dorte Mobley. A meeting needs to be planned.

Submitted by Joan Redlin, Secretary

Annual Spring Garden Show
April 15 @ 10:00 am - 5:00 pm
The Mall at Sears, 600 E Northern
Lights Blvd
Anchorage, AK 99503

Celebrate spring at the annual Garden Show! This event features informative displays and services of local garden experts, as well as businesses that will be on hand to give advice and answer questions. Many of the participants will be selling plants, seeds, gardening supplies and reference books.
